ABOUT PENICHE

The origin of Peniche is lost in the night and in several stories. In ancient times, Peniche was an island, without the “arm” of earth that makes the connection with the continent. Once an island, it was colonized by a small group of Lusitanians who run away from the malicious Júlio César to that place of difficult access. They gave origin to the population of Peniche. Rodrigo Carvalheiro and Eduardo Dias transcribes it in a book called “Memórias de Forasteiro”, a narrative of the Crusade warrior Osberno, to D. Afonso Henriques battle companion in the conquest of Lisbon: “In the fallowing day, we entered in the port of Peniche Island, about 800 steps distant from the continent. In this island it’s abundant venisons and above all rabbits, it’s also possible to find the alcaçuz plant...”

In old times, the word Peniche meant “small boat”. The district offers several interesting points: a Fortress Museum, several precious district Churches, each one with a very personify beauty and architectonic.

I richness. From these, in the village of Peniche, four deserver a mention: Church of Misericórdia, N^a. Sr.^a. da Ajuda, Remédios Sanctuary and S, Pedro Church. The Handicraft, the truth-value of the city, has in bobbing laces its biggest expression. In Peniche it’s possible to find a set of magnificently and beautiful beaches: Baleal, Consolação, Supertubos, S. Bernardino... these beaches are ideal for the practice of water sports. Berlenga’s islands, the unique natural maritime reserve of the country, make the people of Peniche proud. www.cm-peniche.pt
